High-Performance Leadership

From Control to Empowerment

As you prepare to compete in the chaotic and challenging environment of today, there is no more significant theme than leadership. In fact, take a moment to think about the word "leadership." What does it mean? What feelings and images does it arouse inside of you?

Leadership is a vibrant and meaningful word, and it stirs up a sense of idealism, excitement, hope, and courage. It is a word that should inspire you to be your best. Leadership is a word that most associate with the finest and most influential among us.

So most believe that the topic of leadership is exciting. Perhaps most interesting is that you know that your organization has excellent leadership potential among its employees at all levels. Our goal is for you to learn that it is not necessary to change the world or become a household name to become a great leader.

It means that you can be a positive influence on those around you. It also means that you can create an organization founded on the vision of an ideal and that you can create conditions that encourage others to rise above mediocrity and perform at their best. The objective of this program is to understand the foundation principles of leadership and practice them within your work community. It does not matter whether you supervisor or lead a staff of two or a nation of millions; the principles are the same.

What you get out of this program depends more on your desire to become a great leader than upon our ability to teach you what that means. This program is our attempt to distill the topic of leadership to an understandable set of principles and practices that few would challenge or dispute. It is up to you, through self-reflection, to decide how much you want to grow and change your leadership ability and practices. If you desire, then this program gives you the tools to accomplish that objective.
